County Tractor 4-H Club Course is Completed

Appomattox County 4-H Tractor Club members complete their regularly scheduled classes on Tuesday night, April 24, with a nail quiz and plans for a county operators' elimination contest in the immediate future. As a climax and highlight to the six week course held one night each week in Appomattox Hardware building, the 4-H boys and their parents had as their guests on Tuesday night April 17, F. O. Gardner and B. C. Layne, assistant service supervisors of the International Harvester Company, Richmond, who gave a detailed picture of the operation and performance of the farm tractor. Through the use of slides and oral explanation, the boys were briefed on "preventative maintenance" which can be accomplished at home, prolonging the life of the farm tractor, allowing more efficient operation and eliminating the need for such a service man for minor repairs.

To support the course, stress was placed on constant reference to the operator's manual that comes with the purchase of every tractor. This manual contains the recommended lubrication chart, proper parts to be used and care to be given to the particular farm tractor as determined by the highest technical skills of expert engineers.

Dan Davidson, Appomattox Senior 4-H Club member, who attended the State 4-H Tractor Clinic in Staunton, and "Sarge" Morris, the maintenance and repair man with the Appomattox Hardware Company were the principals instructors in the course. There were 14 4-H boys representing most every section of the county completing the course.

Tractor maintenance is one of many projects that 4-H boys and girls may enroll in. Since every project is a contest, the 4-H-er who has the best record in the county will be presented with a medal and will be entered in the state contest. Last year Dan Stegral, Evergreen, won first in the state and was awarded an all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

The tractor driving contest follows the maintenance course, but is a separate contest. 4-H-ers completing the maintenance course may enter the operators contest. The county winner to receive a medal and the top state winners receiving awards. Boys or girls entering the district and state contests must be at least 16 years old.

The operator's demonstration contest will be scored on four points:

1. A mental examination, composed of questions on the tractor as covered in the maintenance course.

2. Inspection, starting engine, warm-up, starting tractor.

3. Spotting, driving, backing.

4. Belting.

Scoring is done on the points-off system which allows the operator with the lowest score to win. The operator may select any make or model of tractor available and only new tractors will be used. Just prior to the actual contest, a 30-minute practice period will be allowed at which time dealers or others will be allowed to give instructions to the contestant in safe starting and operation of the tractor. Last year, Jay Stewart and Leon Paulett won 2nd and 3rd respectively in the state contest.

Boys who have completed the 4-H Tractor Maintenance Course this year and who are eligible to compete in the operators' contest include: Dan Carson, Sam Davidson, Loys Perdue, Frank Cawthorne, Jerry Nash, Clarence White, Billy Carson, Arthur Mullins, Harold Blanks, Billy Bondurant, Ralph Reynolds, Frank Inge, Tony Grabovec, and William Ranson.

Newton's Rings

What causes little rainbows which appear in slides of color photographs? These are called Newton's rings, and they occur where a slight bulge in the film comes into very tight contact with the glass used as a cover. Light is reflected both from the inner surface of the glass and the top of the film. Depending on the thickness of the air space between these surfaces the light waves from the two reflections may join together to reinforce each other, or they may cancel. The two sets of waves are out of step, one canceling the other. Light of different colors is made of waves of different lengths, so a particular thickness of the air space will let one color through and not the other, resulting in the rainbow effect. The colors that appear in films of oil on a wet street are caused in the same way.

Evergreen PTA

The Evergreen P.-T. A. held its regular meeting Tuesday night April 17, at 7:30. Scripture was read by Mrs. Louise Farrar. Mrs. J. K. Hamilton offered prayer. A quiz was conducted by Mrs. Carl Womack.

A nominating committee was appointed to select suggested officers for next year. The next meeting will be held May 22.

Large numbers of town people attended the annual Spring Flower Show here Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Beards On and Off Since History's Start

Consider the case of one U.S. division in Korea. Not long ago its general was urging his men to grow beards as a morale booster and also to distinguish them from their smarely-whiskered foes in night fighting. Then a new commander took charge and frowned on the idea.

Down in Indochina, meanwhile, there was a shuffle of top brass for French troops, and one of the first remarks attributed to the five-star general taking over was a firm: "Soldiers are clean shaven!" Yet Foreign Legionnaires bulwark his forces, and many of them consider their full beards the badge of a fighting man's profession. From earliest times, the bushy adornment of men's faces has been thus alternately esteemed and disdained.

Often, of course, full beards have bloomed for the good reason that grimmer business than shaving took priority. Such was the case with GI's waging jungle warfare in the Solomons, New Guinea and Burma, as well as with UN forces in Korea now.

Razors (straight, safety and electric) were never in wider use than they are in the generally bare-faced Western World of today. Beardless cycles, however, are old stuff. For centuries, the ancient Egyptians despised whiskers in any form, and archeologists have unearthed keen-edged blades of obsidian (volcanic glass) which presumably took care of the five-o'clock shadow problem in Mesopotamia more than 5,000 years ago.

Puget Sound

Pudget Sound proper and the Hood Canal form a double fishhook southward 75 miles into the Evergreen State from the Strait of Juan de Fuca. It was just over a century ago that the white settlers came to Olympia, Wash., now the state capital. A city of 16,600 people, it lies at the tip of Budd Inlet, southernmost arm of Pudget Sound's waters. In the 1950 census preliminary count, Seattle, midway on Pudget Sound's east coast, is hub of a metropolitan area of 731,117 people. Tacoma, only 24 air miles south, lifts the population of the two city trading areas above the one million mark. Everett and Bellingham, on the Sound north of Seattle, count 34,000 residents each. Bremerton, naval and shipbuilding center on Kitsap Peninsula, with 28,000, helps to give Puget Sound a near monopoly on Washington cities. Spokane is the only large size center in the dry eastern part of the state.

Ancients Used Color

Among the pigments used by the ancients were azurite and Egyptian blue and the ochres from which browns were obtained. The greens were derived from malachite, chrysocolla, green frit or usually a mixture of blue frit and yellow ochre. verdigris and terra verte. Reds were obtained from the red ochres, cinnabar, realgar and, later, red lead. Yellow ochre and orpiment provided the yellows, while pink was gained by mixing red ochre and white or using madder. As for white, its source was chalk, gypsum and white lead. Charcoal, lamp and bone black, as well as pyrolusite provided the blacks.

For "Home" Office

An exceedingly useful addition to kitchen equipment is a wooden filing cabinet of the type used in offices. These letter file drawers may be purchased separately or in a group. Four such cabinets can be used to make an efficient desk that contains convenient space for recipes and menus clipped from magazines. Such a desk can be enameled or lacquered to match the kitchen color scheme.

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) died yesterday, after an extended illness.

Gibraltar of the Air Is French Morocco

Guarding the ocean door to the Mediterranean, and within airmen's reach of three continents, is a new U.S. outpost for the defense of Western Europe—French Morocco.

Under the Franco-American agreement just announced, the U.S. Air Force will modernize and help man five French air bases in Morocco, creating a potential Gibraltar for sky power, 15 minutes, or less, by jet south of Britain's rocky fortress on the Strait of Gibraltar. Air Force engineers already are arriving at Africa's northwest gate, where GI's splashed ashore on November 8, 1942, for the historic first round with forces of the Rome-Berlin Axis.

On this flat coastal plain along the Atlantic — ideal for mile - long runways—is a North African garden, or "tell," walled off from the burning Sahara by the three ranges of the Atlas Mountains. Morocco's palaces, minarets and ghettos mark a way of life virtually unchanged for more than a thousand years. American airmen assigned there will step back into a past conjuring up tales of piracy and imperial plunder, Island conquest and Roman ruin.

To many Americans who flew and fought against the Axis, the names of the five joint bases will be familiar: Casablanca, Marrakech, Rabat-Sale, Port Lyautey and Meknes. Forming a 310-mile arc like an epaulet on Africa's left shoulder, the cities mirror the history of Maghreb el Aqsa—"land of the farthest west," as it was known to the ancient Arabs.

Death Rate

American wage-earners and their families established new low death rates in 1950 for pneumonia and influenza, tuberculosis, the common communicable diseases of childhood, the disorders of childbearing, typhoid fever, diarrhea and enteritis, appendicitis, and homicide. The over-all death rate which dropped in 1950 to the lowest yet recorded for the 40-year period over which mortality data have been maintained, stood at 6.37 per 1,000, a decline of about 1 per cent from the 1949 rate, and only about one half the rate of 12.53 per 1,000 recorded in 1911. If the 1911 rate had continued to prevail, there would have been 181,000 more deaths in 1950 than actually occurred. The death rate from diseases of the heart and circulatory system was down 1.8 per cent from 1949, while the cancer rate showed a slight increase. The mortality from acute poliomyelitis was 1 per 100,000, as compared with 1.7 in the year before.
